Summer is the classic wedding season, with long evenings, school out for the year and family members more likely to travel. In Southwest Virginia, though, summer also brings heat and humidity that can wear down even the most enthusiastic guests. Couples looking for a summer wedding venue near Daleville, Cloverdale or Roanoke should put comfort near the top of their list.

Guests can enjoy a short outdoor ceremony with the Blue Ridge Mountains in the background, then step into a cool, open space for dinner and dancing with no one wilting in their formal wear.

The long summer daylight is a real advantage at this venue. Reviewers have raved about the sunset view from the farm, and in June and July the golden hour stretches late into the evening. That gives you a relaxed window for portraits after dinner, when everyone has eaten and the light across the ridges is at its softest.

Keeping Summer Guests Comfortable

The wide covered porch with rocking chairs gives guests a shaded place to sit during cocktail hour. Consider adding a lemonade or iced tea station, handheld fans in the ceremony area and a few umbrellas for sun protection. Inside the barn, restrooms with televisions and Wi-Fi offer a cool break for anyone who needs it.

Summer storms are common in the mountains, usually arriving in the late afternoon. The barn and pavilion give you covered space if a thunderstorm rolls through, and the farm's layout makes it easy to move the ceremony indoors on short notice. Talk through the timing with the family so you have a simple plan ready.

A Summer Menu That Works

Lighter food suits hot weather, and a farm setting invites relaxed options like barbecue, grilled vegetables, fresh salads and fruit desserts. Plenty of water and cold drinks should be available from the moment guests arrive. Talk with your caterer about how they will use the kitchen area to keep dishes chilled, and time the meal so guests are eating inside the air conditioned barn during the warmest part of the evening before heading back to the porch for sunset.
