Key Factors to Consider Before Clicking "Add to Cart"

To avoid buyer's regret, shoppers should assess several critical elements before acquiring a treadmill online.

1. Motor Power (CHP)

The motor is the heart of any treadmill. Measured in Continuous Horsepower (CHP), it identifies how smoothly and reliably the belt will move under your weight.

- 1.5 to 2.0 CHP: Best for walkers and light joggers.
- 2.5 to 3.0 CHP: Ideal for routine joggers and households with mixed-use walking and running.
- 3.0+ CHP: Essential for serious runners, heavy daily use, and period training.

2. Running Deck Size

Absolutely nothing ruins a workout faster than feeling like you are about to step off the back of the machine.

- Length: Walkers can get away with a 45-to-50-inch deck, but anybody who runs or is taller than 5 feet, 8 inches must look for a deck that is at least 55 to 60 inches long.
- Width: A basic width of 20 inches supplies comfortable clearance for a lot of runners.

3. Weight Capacity

Always check the optimum user weight capacity. As a rule of thumb, it is best to pick a treadmill with a weight limitation that is at least 50 pounds heavier than the heaviest user in your household. This guarantees the motor and frame will not be strained.

4. Cushioning Systems

If you have sensitive joints (knees, hips, or lower back), look for treadmills with adjustable or improved cushioning systems. Great shock absorption can minimize impact by approximately 30% compared to working on asphalt.

Comparing Treadmill Types

Not all treadmills are constructed for the very same purpose. Review the table listed below to see which classification best fits your way of life and physical fitness goals.
