

LVL Music Academy is a women-owned business, co-founded by Principal Janice Senejani whose vision and teaching expertise have been central to the academy's growth and reputation since its establishment in 2013. Janice's leadership has shaped the academy's educational philosophy, its teaching quality standards, and its commitment to providing every student with the right teacher and the right learning environment. Janice's credentials are formidable: a performer with the Singapore National Youth Orchestra, a teacher cello store in Singapore at some of Singapore's most respected schools, and a musician with more than two decades of professional experience. Her personal dedication to music education is the reason LVL maintains the consistently high standards that are reflected in its reviews and its students' achievements. For families who value the perspective and approach that a woman educator brings to working with young students, Janice's presence at the helm of LVL is a reassurance. Her warm, disciplined, and artistically sensitive approach to teaching creates a learning environment where students feel supported and inspired in equal measure.
