The randomness of the result is a core selling point; the possibility to obtain an unusual or high-value product fuels the anticipation that drives repeated participation.

Mythic	2.0
Legendary	0.5

In physical secret boxes, producers frequently disclose a "guaranteed worth" for each tier, but the precise circulation of items is frequently kept private. Consumers need to deal with any case-opening purchase as a form of entertainment instead of an investment.

Upfront Cost	Repaired price (e.g., £ 5 for a skin)	Usually lower per effort (e.g., £ 2.50 per open), however repeated attempts collect

Threat Profile	Low danger, high certainty	High threat, low certainty
Home entertainment Value	Moderate; satisfaction of obtaining a wanted product	High; adventure of possible rare pull
Possible ROI	None (unless product values)	Possible (uncommon item might be resold at higher market price)
