For a family trip through MKE, list every passenger by age group and every larger item, including strollers. If a child or booster seat is needed, ask when you book. For a hotel pickup, name the hotel, the entrance you will use and the name on the reservation. Hotel driveways can be busy, so agreeing on the meeting spot ahead of time helps the ride begin smoothly.

Milwaukee Fly Limo provides airport transportation to and from Milwaukee Mitchell International Airport with a late-model luxury SUV fleet. Its chauffeurs are professional, courteous, experienced and safe. Child and booster seats are available as a paid add-on, so ask when you book if your family needs one.

Build in time for children

Children rarely move through a departure on adult schedules. Allow extra minutes for getting everyone out of the door, settled into seats and ready to leave, and include that margin when you choose the pickup time for Milwaukee Mitchell.

On arrival, tired https://maps.google.com/?cid=16333691474950489993 children may need a moment before the drive home. Mention whether you would like a little extra time at the curb or prefer to leave as soon as everyone is aboard.

Describe the family luggage

Strollers, travel cots, car seats and bags of snacks and toys add up quickly. Count them along with the suitcases so the proposed SUV can be discussed with the real load rather than an adult-only estimate.

For the return trip, remember that families often come home with more than they took. Mention any extra bags you expect so the arrival pickup is planned with the larger load in mind. Souvenirs, gifts and purchases from the trip are easy to forget until they are sitting by the door.

List every passenger

Write down each person travelling, including infants and children, and note anyone who needs a child or booster seat. A complete passenger list is the starting point for any discussion about the vehicle and the timing of the ride.

If grandparents or other relatives are joining at the airport or at a different address, include them as well. Families often meet up along the way, and the request should describe the trip as it will actually happen. A complete picture helps everyone understand how the day will unfold.

Keep one family summary

Put the pickup times, addresses, flight numbers and contact number into one short summary and share it with the other adults in the party. When everyone sees the same plan, small changes are easier to handle.

Check the summary again the day before travel. Families plan around many details, and a final review catches the forgotten seat, the extra bag or the changed flight before it becomes a problem. A few minutes spent reviewing the plan the evening before often saves far more time on the morning of the flight.
