

You have waited without complaint. And yet the reply-by date has elapsed, and several guests have still not responded.

Pursuing with guests who have not RSVP'd is one of the most awkward aspects of party planning. Yet it is necessary to guarantee you have exact numbers for your event.

At Kollysphere, we have created 10 effective methods to follow up with guests who have not replied.

1. Send a Friendly Reminder

Fire off a friendly reminder via electronic mail or messaging app. Keep the tone light and non-pressuring.

Second. Pick Up the Phone

A personal call is often more successful than digital correspondence.

Third. Send a Text Message

A brief text is typically the quickest way to get a answer.

4. Use Social Media

Should you are linked with the guest on social networks, a courteous private message can be productive.

5. Enlist a Friend's Help

Should you have a common friend with the guest, enquire of them to gently prompt the guest on your behalf.

6. Send a Second Reminder

Should the maiden reminder is ignored, send a subsequent one a few days later.

Seventh. Set a Final Deadline

Kollysphere's specialists recommend fixing a final limit and conveying it clearly to all guests.

8. Simplify the Response Process

Render it effortless for guests to answer. Provide a clickable link to an online form.

Ninth. Be Understanding

Keep in mind that guests may have reasonable justifications for not replying promptly.

Tenth. Prepare for Non-Responses

At some point, you birthday party event planner birthday planner malaysia birthday party planner kl must have to set a ultimate limit and organise in line with the responses you have got.
